

VOLUME XXXIII---NUMBER 91.

CURIOUS HISTORY OF A $1000 NOTE
Frequent mention has been made in the proceedings of the Baltimore City Council of a $1000 bank note, which was in possession of Mr. Josiah Cobb, and which he felt desirous to have disposed of, so that he might be relieved from all care in reference to it. The history (which we copy from the Baltimore Sun) is a little curious:

In the year 1838, it appears, Mr. O was called on by his brother to change a $10 note into a genuine $1000 bill, and he was curiously asked to know something more about it. So George made a mistake in the denomination of a note and was offered to a lady who conducted the millinery business by an old and notorious confidence man for some article. That confidence man was Mr. C. B. Under, the circumstantialist, and he felt himself comfortable in retaining the note so as to call for it. He advertised for the note and had a find for it. Tired of being its custodian in a city treasury, with $840 interest in it, he offered for the benefit of the owner, if he should be found, the difference between the note and one time or another, by parties in the of administration, or as descendants of colored woman, long since deceased, to possession of it, but without effect. At the time of deposit with the city, the $40 had been lying in the city treasury drawing interest, and at that time the amounts to near $3000. This, by the same person, was deposited in the city treasury, it has been determined shall be applied to the use of the "Union Orphan Asylum." Thus the mysterious note is explained, and the city is relieved of the liability of the fact that Mr. Cobb never had a legal claimant for the note, notwithstanding his repeated advertisements, to wit: that the colored woman, who presented the note, had never appeared to make claim for it.

VISIT OF THE NEW YORK SKYLINE

Paris. The Sun says the proposed visit of the "crack" city regiment to Europe, attracting more attention in Paris and London than it is in New York. No decision has been taken by the regiment, but Colonel Clark is making estimates of the expenses of the proposed trip, which, he made, will be definitely acted upon by the regiment. Colonel Clark will not start, though he can take at least 600 men, with the Engineer Corps and the band.

Commissioner to the Paris Exposition, has been authorized by American agents to visit Europe and London to promote the sale of the fish, and they have paid themselves in large amounts to give the worthy reception. graph has rendered fishermen most intelligent by informing them at what the fish, herring and cod, were assembled in great numbers, when they would instantly set sail for that place and respectively. Along the above length of coast is estimated that 80,000 men are employed in the cod and herring fishery alone. The kind of intelligence will, doubtless be extended.

Letter from Idaho.
The Election—The Mining Interests—John Chapman coming in—What the best place for the election.

Elk City, I. T., Aug. 31, 1866.

Messrs. Wheeler & Lyndon:
"Scribbler" is laid up with the rheumatism, and on a rainy day like this birdy knows how to while away the dreary time till dinner is called. He is reminded by the monotonous which rules supreme, of those rainy Sundays which he spent at home as a littleurchin, when too rainy to stay out doors—and when frequently admonished to "stop that racket." Right well we recollect, rainy Sundays in the old Pine Tree State. They were not as gloomy as the dreary days are here, for our rain forms hold on with the tenacity of the toothache, and make one examine his feet to see if the "nails" are growing. Throughout the rain Idaho has just held her election, and the struggle has been between "any policy" copperheads and the true Union men—who can't see that a loyal majority in Congress is a weak disunion faction—who had rather rule in a—than be ruled on earth.

The returns are not all in, but we confidently expect "any policy" got badly beaten as it will everywhere, where this is intelligent enough to discern the difference between right and wrong—and the mode in which "reason" must be made obvious. J. M. Kirkpatrick, the Union candidate for Congress, is a miser by occupation, and in every respect eminently qualified to represent our interest, while Hofbrook, the copperhead, is just intelligent enough to quote Vallandigham, and obtain nothing for us from the general government.

In mining interests as a general thing we cannot speak very favorably of the placer diggings; they to a great extent are worked nearly out, and are turned over to the capitalists. "John Chapman" introduces himself everywhere, and being willing to work for the half of what a "live Yankee" demands—of course, "ground" which would pay a white man is a paradise to the long-tailed rice-eater, which state of affairs is only to be regretted by the rat family and other vermin for Celestial dirt.

In gold and silver bearing quartz Idaho is indeed rich, and for years to come will show yield millions, and add them to the wealth of the world. This species of mining however requires capital. Steam, water, iron, the elements have to be called in to aid manual labor, and as a result capital rules out the poor discoverer, and the few make what of right belongs to the many. But why talk of rights—the souls of incorporated companies have not yet been discovered. Nothing in the old and new dispensation makes provision of mercy for such a thing—no traces of such a thing as resembles a soul having ever been found. It stands to reason that the "almighty dollar" will rule, and the poor man sweat, as to-day is the last of August. The summer solstice is nearly passed, and our snow-capped mountains show that the rays of old Sol have not been strong enough to undo the work of winter.

The Blackfoot diggings in Montana, are over supplied with everything except "pay dirt." English, Irish, Dutch, Yankees and Missouri bull drivers, of no nationality, and other bipeds are there in thousands—and luck will be those who can make their "grab" and winter comfortably. I have been in most of the gold country, seen for myself, been glad to straddle my pony, shoulder my rifle, whistle for my dog, to follow and start for a place of less pretensions and more money. With all my weary wanderings, no spot have I ever dove, my stakes on and made my camp, on bank of greater inducements than are offered to willing hands in the dear old State, whose motto "Dirigo" speaks so much truth—Snow has already fallen in the mountain regions—frosty nights the year round—no society for lack of "crinolines and waterfalls"—discouraged miners—gray heads and your own style of cooking, washing and mending for every day scenes and joy fill the picture. I have written long enough, and am reminded by a few long twinges of the rheumatism that I may as well lay down the pen. Searsville.

THE CONDITIONS—WILL THEY BE ACCEPTED IN SEASON? The Providence Journal, always a moderate paper, in speaking of the belief in many quarters that a condition of impartial justice should be imposed upon the late revolution, before admitting them to take part in the government, says: "Although no doubt was given, it was practically known, that the case of Tennessee, who really has been and embraces the opportunity of being a free and happy people, would admit to a share in the government, any State that manifested disposition to accept the position as well as the military situation. It must be remembered that the mild and magnanimous conditions proposed by Congress fell far short of the demands of the extreme men, even at a time when the great and rebel terror of the revolution State, had not manifested itself, as it has since the commencement of the war. It was in anticipation of this, which the extreme men predicted, and which the moderate men discredited, that the former demanded exactions to which the latter would not assent. Now it is not to be denied that the conduct of the south is justifying the sinister predictions of those who most distrusted them. The implied pledge in the admission of the Senators and Representatives from Tennessee, and still more the general approbation of that measure coupled with the amendment, will, we think, be pretty certain to secure the admission of the other States, on the same terms, if they take the same course. But if they wait, till the north becomes more excited by the continual evidence of the truth of this report, it cannot now be predicted what new conditions even moderate men may deem essential. For although there is a strong feeling, all over the north to see the government fully restored, and all the States in their places, even this is subordinate to the determination that when all this is done, it shall be done so as not to require to be done over again.

The refusal of the South to accept the conditions offered, and the encouragement which they receive in their blind and foolish contempt for northern democracy are the great obstacles to a just and permanent reconstruction. No matter how far at all likely to be offered and how is the time to accept them. The main work by profers of sympathy and promises of assistance, encourage the Southern States in their mad treasonable rebellion are luring them to great disasters by encouraging them in a political position which will prove as fatal as their military attitude; and Lee surrendering to Grant in spite of opposing army, party, so will the southern politicians be compelled to surrender to the people, to the constitution and the law, and the sooner their surrender is made the lighter will be its terms.

Our Augusta Correspondence.

Augusta, Me., Oct. 12.

To the Editor of the Whig:
At a special meeting of the City Council Wednesday afternoon, 10th inst., the doing of the public meeting of the day before—a report of which has been given to your readers—was read to the two bodies in joint session, and the findings of the city voted to pay the $100,000 towards the purchase of the real estate located by the Messrs. Sprague; to take property at its present valuation for ten years from March 1st, 1867, to pay any improvements the Messrs. Sprague should make, to the value of $20,000, or over, from the time such improvement shall be made, such exemption not to continue beyond 1881—and (not over $200,000 and over, as you make my last report incorrectly to read) and lastly, to make necessary changes in the streets. Provision was made for the raising of $200,000 by the city, being the amount which Augusta is to pay towards the purchase of the water power and other real estate, and the Mayor is ordered to petition the next Legislature for power to raise the amount by city bonds.

You make my last report to read $200,000 as the amount of capital represented by the Messrs. Sprague. It did read, or should have read, $20,000,000, in this copy.

MISCELLANEOUS.
The store of John McArthur, grocer, situated in the Post Office Building, Water street, was broken into Wednesday night, and some twenty-five dollars in script abstracted from the drawer. Notices of the thief have been given.

At the last regular meeting of the City Council held the 20th ult., it was passed in conference that the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department be instructed to construct another reservoir not less than 300 high-head capacity. So you see our city is guarding against another fire.

A lake issue of the Bangor Times takes occasion to rail at our Court House. If the Editor wished to pick flaws in Augusta, it is fortunate that he selected the Court House, being the only public building that is not an honor to the city and to the State. Certain classes, however, are always finding fault with anything appearing in the light.

Augusta, Oct. 12, 1866.

Messrs. Wheeler & Lyndon:

Genl.—Noticing several errors (typographical probably) in the letter from your correspondent, E. H. T., in this morning's issue, I thought a few words of explanation would not be amiss, inasmuch as the magnitude of the proposed improvement of the water power at this place is a sufficient excuse for my troubling you.
The property of the Augusta Water Power Company comprises the dam across the Kennebec river, some fifty acres of land on both sides of the river adjoining it, a brick cotton factory of 10,000 spindles, numerous saw mills and manufacturers of furniture, and other commodities, costing $750,000; and it is said, has paid a profit of $200,000 during the past three years. The whole of this property is sold by the proprietors to the Messrs. Sprague for $185,000, of which sum the city of Augusta furnished $35,000, making the cost to the Messrs. Sprague $150,000.
This property is embodied in a corporation, created by the Legislature last winter, with a capital of $2,000,000, called the "Cushman Manufacturing and Water Power Company"—which charter, with the above property, is transferred to the Messrs. Sprague for $150,000, as above. A large amount, say from fifty to one hundred thousand dollars, will probably be expended on the same in adding five feet to its present height, and affording a capacity, as estimated by the Messrs. Sprague's engineer, for 1,400,000 spindles, which is believed to be wholly improved, even if the expenditure required shall be twenty-five million dollars. Not less capital than two million dollars will be expended within the next two years. For the additional land required by the Messrs. Sprague, they pay $100,000, and the city of Augusta, $50,000, making the entire purchase $150,000, of which the city pays $50,000.
The liberty which characterizes the proprietors of the Water Power Company, and the citizens of Augusta, is without parallel in this State, and it would be difficult to find another locality where the proprietors of an investment of $750,000, judiciously made, would be willing to part with it for the sum of $185,000.

in this State, and it would be difficult to find another locality where the proprietors of an investment of $750,000, judiciously made, would be willing to part with it for the sum of $185,000.
It is understood that the Messrs. Sprague's plan for the improvement of the Augusta water power, contemplate the immediate demolition of all the mills and manufacturing establishments, including the cotton factory, and the displacement of streets and one deeply road if no more—thus enabling them to accomplish the excavation of their canal upon both sides of the Kennebec river on a scale of the greatest magnitude, and the construction of some of the largest and most improved cotton and woolen manufacturing to be found in the world.
The necessity for the removal of all of the present structures upon the dam accounts for the comparatively low price insisted upon by the purchasers.
Very respectfully, yours, &c., N. T.
(The errors referred to were typographical, and the manuscript being a little indistinct, our correspondent "E. H. T." is generally a correct man. Another letter will be found from him.)—Ed. Whig.

The Language of Flowers.

By A. M. B. B.

In a garden nook, by a wall spreading rose,

A silver old nettle and daisy once grown;

They were spotted with gold, and the daisy was white,

Why the rose has been always so loved by man,

Why the daisy has been always so loved by man,

But the rose is very sweet, and the daisy is white,

And the daisy is very sweet, and the rose is white,

And the rose is very sweet, and the daisy is white,

And the daisy is very sweet, and the rose is white,

And the rose is very sweet, and the daisy is white,
